

Library

Jimmy has no friends and must study alone. He is very sad.

Jimmy hears some students talking about an app for students to study together, even if they don't know each other!

Jimmy checks out the app and sees many options to meet up with others!

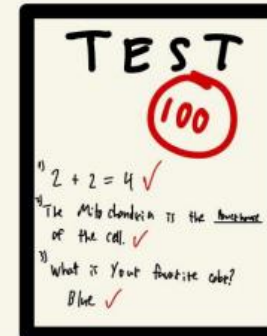

Jimmy makes his own room and finds people from his major to study with!

Library

They study together and have a great time!

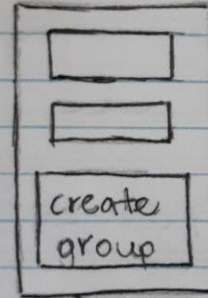

With the help of his new friends, Jimmy got a 100 on his next test!

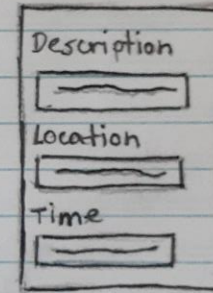

Sarah is doing math homework and realizes that she could use help from other students

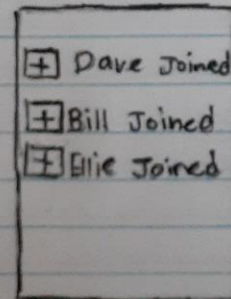

She has trouble finding classmates to study with

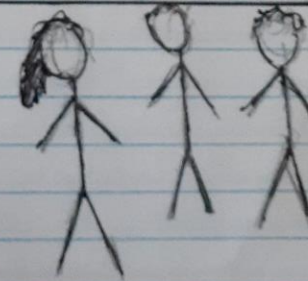

She finds an app where she can create a study group the students can join

She sets a meeting location and time with a description of the event

She sees that other students join her session and plan to come

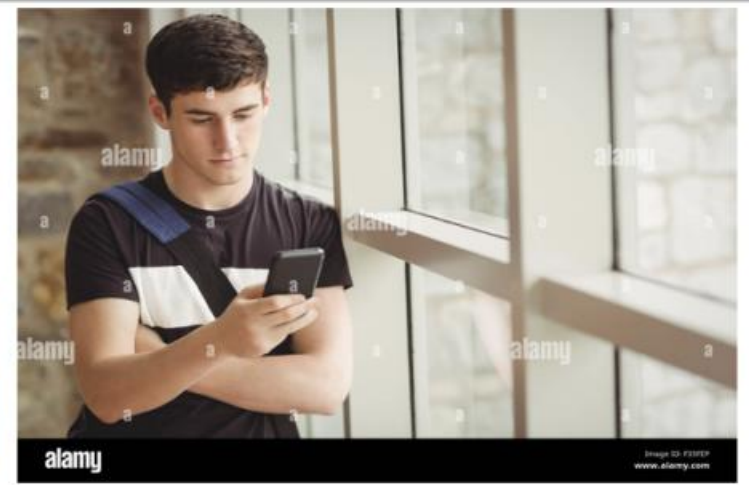

She goes to her session and people show up. They all help each other study

John Smith is a UofSC student with a lot of schoolwork and test coming up.

He wishes there was a way to find groups to study with at school with similar majors/classes.

The struggle of finding groups to work with can be hard to deal with.

With an app that helps him connect with students and groups he doesn't feel as hopeless.

He is excited to meet up with new people and groups to study together.

He now doesn't struggle with finding new groups and friends to help him with his studies.